HAPPY BIRTHDAY, OREGON

(YOU DON'T LOOK A DAY OVER 145)

In 2009, Oregon will celebrate its 150th birthday—or sesquicentennial if you're feeling fancy—and there sure is a lot to celebrate. From sand dunes to waterfalls, from the Oregon Trail to the Portland Trail Blazers, everywhere you look there's another reason to sing the praises of the Beaver State.

In fact, there's so much worth celebrating, we're going to need everyone's help to do it right. That's why we're inviting the good people of this fine state to tell us their favorite stories of life in Oregon. The inspiring and uplifting, the touching and sad, the madcap and funny—we're collecting all the best tales of where Oregon's been and where it's heading from the people who know it best. Then, we'll share these stories with the entire state through radio, television and print, as well as on our Oregon 150 website.

Here's where you come in. This is a big undertaking, and to do it to the level that Oregon deserves, we'll need your support. Please consider making a donation to help get this project started. And this isn't a surprise party, so feel free to talk it up with anyone you think might be interested in lending a hand.

So help us celebrate Oregon—33rd in the Union, but first in our hearts!

HOW TO GET INVOLVED (BECAUSE YOU KNOW YOU WANT TO)

OREGON STORIES

We're collecting your stories about Oregon that you cherish—the way things used to be, or what you hope they can become. Tell us what you want other Oregonians to know and to remember. We'll share the best stories with you, on TV, print, radio and the web.
